CIE ELA 2008 The CIE ELA 2008 (European Level Assessment) is a standardised assessment tool for university entrance, awarding the students of the institutes E20, E21, E22 with a level of study in mathematics and physics, and in the other subjects of level E0, E1, E2, E3, E4, E5, E6, E7, E8, E9, E10 of the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS). It is organised by the European University Association (EUA), and is based upon the framework developed for the EN 14032-1:2008: Calculation of Age-related Scores for Students of Elementary and Secondary Schools published by the European Council on Secondary Education (ECSE). Overview The program is organised into 4 components with 5 main subjects. The objective is to provide reliable information on the student's educational performance. Each of the 5 main subjects have 3 components: Mathematical Thinking, which is tested by closed- and open-ended matrices, logical reasoning and estimation problems, as well as abstract- and spatial-reversed images; Scientific Understanding, which tests visual perception, understanding concepts in science, and inference and deduction skills in natural sciences; Reading and Writing, which tests the students' reading and writing abilities, and their ability to solve problems written in English; General Information, which tests the student's ability to analyse, synthesise and judge information in the context of the defined concept. It is made up of general knowledge and literal-expression items. The total number of points a student can score is 800, and they can use the pass mark, which is 60, to determine which subjects they can choose. Also, the sums of points are between 30 and 40, and only 1-5 ECTS can be converted to this 100, so the final grade is between 3.7 and 4.3. There are no attempts, instead the students receives the score and can then make a higher one, if they want. For the first three years of university study, this system is widely used across Europe, while the system used by the universities in England and Wales is the AS Level. Grading At the end of the examination, two grades are assigned: Pass – This is the minimum pass grade. There is no score given for this grade. Merit – This is the normal university grade. The assessment produces the minimum required number
